Supermodel and reality TV star Joanna Krupa and her Miami Beach nightlife entrepreneur husband were officially divorced this morning in a downtown Miami courtroom.

The former Real Housewives of Miami star, 38, and Romain Zago, her husband of four years, appeared in the courtroom and testified that their marriage is indeed 'irretrievably broken.'

They provided the judge with signed copies of a confidential post-nuptial agreement and told them they both signed voluntarily and understand the conditions.

The 15-minute hearing concluded with Miami-Dade County Family Court Judge George Sarduy signing the final judgment and warning the torn lovebirds they need to abide by their agreement.

The final judgment obtained by DailyMail.com shows neither Krupa nor Zago, who owns the famous nightclub Mynt Ultralounge, asked for alimony. They have no children together.

The judgement comes just weeks after Krupa settled her longtime battle with her nemesis Brandi Glanville.

Zago and Krupa's lavish wedding in San Diego in June 2013 was very much a part of the drama in Seasons 2 and 3 of RHOM.

Krupa seemed unsure she wanted to tie the knot with Zago and wavered between getting married or calling it off.

At one point, Zago presented former Playboy pinup Krupa with a pre-nuptial agreement, something that led to a Krupa freak out that may very well have been one of the highlights of the three-year series. Krupa even told castmates she felt like she wanted "to kill him."

From the early moments of their marriage, meanwhile, Krupa and Zago were caught in a coast-to-coast relationship. Krupa spent a lot more time in Los Angeles than Miami. And modeling shoots throughout the world kept her away from Zago, 44, whose nightclub kept him in Miami Beach.

The two announced they were separated earlier this year.

Krupa was seen with with businessman Nico Santucci, a 50-year-old food entrepreneur originally from Chicago. But she tells DailyMail.com: 'I am single and will stay single until I am serious with someone, and will then make it official.

'For now, I'm just enjoying being social and focusing on my work.'

Ray Rafool, Krupa's Miami attorney, said in July the supermodel and Zago "just grew apart."

He also said they hammered out a divorce settlement months ago.

"This might be the easiest divorce I've ever worked on," Rafool said. "Everything has been worked out. There's no alimony, just equitable distribution of their assets, and that was agreed to."
