Real estate mogul Sergio Pino 'poisoned wife and hired men to kill her'
before he was found dead at $8m mansion

A REAL estate titan accused of poisoning his wife with fentanyl and hiring hit men to kill her has died by suicide during a SWAT raid of his million-dollar mansion.

The allegations against Pino in the former couple's divorce proceedings also included claims of arson and stalking. FBI officials said the real estate mogul was found dead from an "apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound" in an upstairs bedroom of his waterfront home in Coral Gates, about five miles outside of Miami. "Sergio Pino took his own life today," Rabin said in a statement slamming how law enforcement handled the raid.

"The subject was arrested without incident and a search of that location was conducted," officials said in a statement. FBI Miami's Special Agent in Charge Jeffrey Veltri shared the following statement regarding Tuesday's incident. "The second location was at 142 Isla Dorada Boulevard in Coral Gables where the subject, Sergio Pino, was discovered by the FBI inside the residence deceased from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

"Because this is an ongoing investigation, no further information will be released at this time," the statement concluded. Officials said one of the crews allegedly tried to shoot Tatiana just last month. FORMER EMPLOYEE INVOLVED Tatiana's attorney, Raymond Rafool, told WPLG that testing around that time revealed "bath salts in her medications and fentanyl in her system." "My client feels very strongly that he has been trying to poison her for two years" before she filed for divorce, the attorney told local NBC affiliate
